Ms. Sheila Penny
Executive Superintendent, Facility Services
Toronto District School Board
5050 Yonge Street
Toronto, Ontario
M2N 5N8

Dear Ms. Penny:

We are writing on behalf of over 600 North Toronto Collegiate alumni, former staff, parents and community members whose names are listed on Schedule A. We are all deeply concerned about the proposal to “redevelop” North Toronto Collegiate by demolishing the school, selling off part of the land to a private condominium developer and using the proceeds to build a new smaller school. This proposal is radical and unprecedented and must not proceed further without an informed, vigorous public debate of all possible alternatives.

The land on which North Toronto Collegiate is situated was given to the public school board for the benefit of the school and the community. It should not be sold to private developers. You have suggested that, given current budgetary constraints, the school board needs to adopt creative solutions to improve its schools. We agree. However, selling school land to private developers is not a creative solution. It is an easy, short-sighted solution that will provide a quick profit for the board but ultimately be detrimental to the school and the community.

Many other schools beyond North Toronto Collegiate also sit on prime real estate. Is the school board’s plan to sell off other school land to private developers? Examples of schools with land that would be “ripe” for private development include John Fisher Public School, Northern Secondary School, Lawrence Park Collegiate, Parkdale Collegiate, Bloor Collegiate and Central Technical School.

Currently, North Toronto Collegiate’s land and building design create a separate campus in the burgeoning Yonge-Eglinton area. Students are part of a safe, separate community in which they can learn, socialize and explore extra-curricular pursuits without being in the way of people who live and carry on business nearby. Under the proposal, the school will be surrounded by three 24-30 storey condominium towers. Other than the playing field, there will be almost no other outside space for students and the community. In addition, the new building will be substantially smaller and have less room for future expansion. The new building will also lack the prominence and character of the existing building.

The school board has already committed $14 million for capital improvements at North Toronto Collegiate. You have indicated publicly that it would cost $16-18 million “to fully renovate” the existing school. Although the $14 million already committed would not cover this entire cost, it would undoubtedly make a substantial improvement. Other sources of funding should be explored to make further improvements to the building without selling off the school’s land. Indeed, many secondary schools in Toronto have been renovated and rebuilt without private development, including Riverdale Collegiate, Earl Haig Secondary School, Harbord Collegiate, East York Collegiate, and Forest Hill Collegiate.

North Toronto Collegiate has been a community landmark for over 90 years. NOW Magazine recently identified it as one of ten buildings in Toronto worth saving. The school is a magnet for students and parents from all over the city who appreciate the school's long tradition of high academic standards and excellence in music, athletics, student leadership, and extra-curricular activities.

The new provincial government is committed to reviewing the education funding formula to ensure that school boards have adequate resources to repair, renovate and rebuild aging schools. Indeed, the new government has established a Ministry of Public Infrastructure Renewal to support the revitalization of schools and other public institutions. The TDSB supervisor has been terminated and the school trustees elected on November 10th will begin to take over administration of the school board after December 1st. Given all of these recent developments, now is not the time to race ahead with this proposal.

There are serious flaws in the process that led to this decision. There was no consultation with the community before the plan to demolish the school was announced. Nor has there been any discussion of alternatives. The school board claims that there is support for this proposal. However, given the lack of consultation and the fact that there has been no discussion of alternatives, this claim has no credibility.

Before this proposal proceeds further, we urge you to ensure that there is a full, public discussion of all possible alternatives. This issue has enormous implications for the local community and for public schools all across Ontario. It deserves a full and open debate.

Yours truly,

(Signed)
